

Wanted To Rent

*Wanted to rent, a new place to call home,
A place with some space, where our three boys can roam.*

*We lived in the country, then moved to the 'burbs,
But eight years all jam-packed, it starts to disturb.*

*The house was a good size when we were just three,
But now we are five, it's a bit of a squeeze!*

*A home office leaves just one room for three boys,
With no space our house often vibrates with noise.*

*Each day we all chafe at our close situation,
So small is this place we might just need sedation!*

*Each day we all dream of a place with some space,
A house in the country with space would be ace.*

*Climbing trees, space for pets and our big trampoline,
Within fifty minutes from Tullamarine.*

*Our oldest, it's true, needs a room of his own,
It becomes more important the more he has grown.*

*A place for our music, crafts, books and our toys,
A space to be quiet, and to think with no noise.*

*Some chooks for fresh eggs, oh, and maybe some ducks,
We'd love to grow veggies, herbs, fruit trees and pups!*

*More room to relax, to just be and to breathe,
Suburban harsh sounds make our stress levels seethe.*

Loud neighbours, late parties, the shouting and swearing,

Doors slamming, horns tooting, and loud music blaring.

*Cars revving and squealing, dogs barking, cats fighting,
The sounds of loud traffic, pollution, harsh lighting.*

*We desperately need some relief from this stress,
Escape from the 'burbs to a country address.*

*If you know a place we could rent and call home,
Where three active boys can adventure and roam,*
